HOME IS WHERE YOU CAN BE YOU

“A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME”

“A chair is still a chair, even when there is no one sittin’ there, but a chair is not a house and a house is not a home when there’s no one there to hold you tight, and no one there you can kiss goodnight.”

This great hit by dutch jazz and pop singer Trijntje Oosterhuis (Burt Bacharach) came to mind when we pondered Puck’s future about five years ago. It was the end of 2014 and our middle daughter Puck would soon turn 20.

Puck was born with a learning disability; she is an amazing, special person and copes quite well verbally and physically, but we were aware though she’d never be fully independent. The diagnosis came at around the age of two that she was a little girl with a disability. Although it’s never been made entirely clear what’s wrong with her; it’s never been pinpointed. We only recognized her limitations after everyone else around us already had, but didn’t want to mention them. To us Puck was simply adorable and everything would surely turn out OK ...

The diagnosis, when it finally came, was a shock but we soon found our feet again as Puck was Puck who we’d known for two years and had become a unique child already.

All kinds of scenarios were played out for us by the specialists, predicting her future capabilities. With everything they told us, Saskia and I thought: we’ll see. Indeed, she can now read and write (phonetically). She can even follow an English film with subtitles relatively easily, and in broken English can order her own food and drink in a restaurant on Ibiza where we have a house. With a few hand gestures she always gets there in the end.

She phones the dentist herself when she needs an appointment and reads and answers emails and Whatsapp messages in her own way. She enjoys contact with the whole world via social media which enriches her life enormously. She thoroughly enjoys going to swimming and Zumba but does need help with other things though, nor is she aware of road safety.

We’re lucky in that Puck isn’t shy so she gets involved in all sorts, and with Puck ‘what you see is what you get’; no hidden agenda, not nice means not nice and good simply means good.

As government healthcare funding is ever diminishing, four sets of parents put their heads together at the time and founded a parental home initiative due to the long government facility waiting lists. We wanted a real home for our children, one where they would feel at home, even when we were no longer around. Moreover, the occupants would ideally be on the same relative disability level and get on with one another, of course.

Puck works at the Long Island restaurant in Hoofddorp (she works five days a week undertaking daytime activities). Here she got to know Kelly and Lisa. Its together with their parents, as well as Björn’s, that we started looking into the possibilities of a real home. A great deal of preparatory work was done, particularly by the day-to-day management team, Björn and Lisa’s parents, who are also co-founders.

With the support of countless sponsors, Haarlemmermeer council and a huge amount of perseverance by everyone involved, the house finally came about this year. We called it ‘Villa Octet’ after the eight occupants (4 boys and 4 girls) who were going to live there and who were to form a harmonious entity, just like an ensemble made up of eight people.

The official opening took place in mid May and as Puck is friends with so many Dutch celebrities (see her wall of fame), RM fan Trijntje Oosterhuis selflessly offered to perform and sing a lovely song with the new occupants.

Right from the start it was a given that Riviera Maison would fund the interior design; it had to be a true home from home. Villa Octet has eight flats, each totalling 50 m² with a living room, bedroom, kitchenette and bathroom. The ground floor flats even have their own little garden. The house is energy neutral, has a high insulation value and is heated gas-free. Pretty much the same amount of energy is utilized as it’s provided back to the energy company via the solar collectors.

The house also has a music/games room and a room for the night-time carers, as they are always on hand when the youngsters are at home. They help with grocery shopping, cook with the occupants and provide a helping hand where necessary, forming a genuine family, but that assistance is also there to simply provide a listening ear, or a cuddle. Puck was very nervous in the lead up to the house completion. It was a hugely exciting time for all of us, but I knew it was a success when having lived there for a couple of weeks and after an evening spent back at our home (a Thursday as usual, after swimming training), she said she wanted to go back home. Puck has a new home.

The occupants all get on with each other well and everything ticks along nicely. They can chill together in the communal room but if they want a little privacy they can retreat to their own flat. Puck’s flat is a regular meeting/drop-in place, especially when there’s a football match on TV; Puck is mad about football.

We are over the moon with this set-up and are delighted for all the parents and occupants. This house has actually become a ‘Home’. Home is where you can be you.

THE BIG MOVE

Having lived in Amsterdam for 24 years it was time for a change; a spacious loft apartment in a small village on the water's edge was what I had in mind. The house dates back to 1918 and boasts numerous original features, beautiful old beams and a superb, traditional finish. I was hooked from the start, it was love at first sight! It all happened rather quickly, and in no time at all I found myself in my new home. I do now though understand how moving house can be stressful. Having packed 200 boxes, 15 trolleys full of clothing and the same number of boxes of paintings, my stress level was at its zenith.

The moving day coincided with The Netherlands' first southwesterly storm of the year, with wind and torrential downpours. Luckily my amazing removals team worked wonders: everything was unpacked and in its place after just two days, with superb lighting all around and magnificent views. I delighted in thinking about a house again; I put our new wallpaper up in different places in the house and wow ... what a stunning result!

I particularly wanted to tackle the dressing room, so I wallpapered the ceiling for a super cool look & feel! In the hallway I opted for linen-effect wallpaper on a small wall, framing a beautiful commode before it. My roof patio has evolved into a delightful oasis of tranquility. You can look out on the patio from the hallway through a large window; an oasis of green. I travel a great deal in the Orient so bamboo was a must this time around. As a rule, I like to work with serene tints and then supplement these each season with beautiful cushions and throws.

Besides the house move there was also a lot going on in Nicolicious Land as I call it; after considerable input from everyone, the Heer Hugo restaurant and hotel opened its doors. I am exceedingly proud of the result, it's a real 'must go to venue', with delicious food but ample home & living inspiration besides.

With Nicolicious regards,
Nico Tijsen

A NEW HOME

Muted, light hues predominate in Nico's gorgeous, spaciouly-designed loft apartment that only help to make it look bigger than it is. Nico has opted for furniture pieces in different fabrics that he has contrasted with two funky Amsterdam City Dining Chairs in white at the dining table. Resulting in a tranquil look & feel, nonetheless. Which is a good thing too as Nico – the decorative man – has filled his loft apartment with accessories.

Nico with this best friend Brenda who helped him a lot during the move! Nico: "I couldn't have done it – or wished to have done it – without Brenda. It makes it all the more fun, moving with a friend's help!"

NICOLICIOUS LOVES DETAILS

There's always something to catch your eye at Nico's! Attention has been paid down to the finest detail in finishing the apartment. From the beautiful black & white frames on the wall, to the memory chest on a stack of coffee table books; everything is styled to perfection. The accessories are the ideal blend of holiday finds, trinkets, new bits & bobs, and personal heirlooms!

VILLA OCTET

Villa Octet isn't merely a home but rather an exceptional, fantastic initiative. With eight occupants, a luxurious yet comfortable layout, and a warm ambience, Villa Octet is perhaps the loveliest house in De Haarlemmermeer, The Netherlands.

IT'S NOT JUST A HOUSE

ONE OF THE PROUD OCCUPANTS

PUCK

Not only is Puck the daughter of Henk and Saskia, but she's also Rivière Maison's social animal and busy bee.

Each week she assists the catering team and ensures all the employees at the Rivière Maison head office can come and get their cup of coffee from a clean pantry. Puck loves to clean, so when you make a mess, she will definitely let you know! Moreover, Puck can be found dancing right at the front at any event and is always the beaming focal point. She loves music and dancing, and we, at Rivière Maison, love Puck.

Bear Money Saver

Villa Octet is a stunningly beautiful and special villa because of the people who live there and the parent initiative where it all started with. Since last Spring, eight young adults with a mild to moderate learning disability, are living together in Villa Octet. The house started with the idea of eight parents who were looking for a home for their children. It needed to be a safe, pleasant and ambient living environment, one where the occupants feel truly at home! Henk's daughter Puck is one of the delighted occupants of this amazing house and has lived here since April 2019, together with her seven housemates.

Where does the name 'Villa Octet' come from? The house is located in an area with street names echoing music and composers, so its name just had to link up with music. Together, the occupants of the villa, each with their own input or "instrument" form an ensemble. Just as in an octet, the basic principle is that the occupants can be together in harmony, each with their own unique identity. Which has proven to be the case. The lively villa has a cozy communal space and kitchen, designed completely by Rivière Maison, where everyone can get together, but each occupant also has their private flat to enjoy their own living space, like "everyone" else. Here they can retreat into their own secure sanctuary and can welcome their own guests.

What's great to see is that the flats all have their own unique style. Puck's for example has a stunning pink velvet cozy sofa and countless photos of Puck with famous Dutch celebrities on the wall; a veritable wall of fame. Where the apartment of Jamie has a very rock-'n-roll fifties kind of style, including black & white photos of Elvis and Marilyn Monroe.

The occupants do though always cook and eat together, it's one big party! This happens under supervision of one of the people of Stichting Woondroomzorg. They make sure the residents have a warm, yet professional support system so that there's always someone home to rely on. There are clear arrangements in place as to chores, leaving plenty of opportunity for nice chats, conviviality and, when needed, a listening ear. The occupants of Villa Octet share a communal garden. In nice weather everyone eats together outdoors, these are the best moments. Also, last summer there was a inflatable pool, a present of one of the carers. And once again, that emphasizes the great relationship between residents and carers.

Villa Octet's eight occupants, 4 boys and 4 girls complement one another perfectly. There is respect for one another and when someone is unhappy, there is much consolation to be found from the others. Solid proof that this isn't merely an exceptional initiative but that it's also the ideal solution for the long-term, when not all parents will be around anymore.

A relaxed atmosphere prevails at Villa Octet and everyone is happy to be finally living there. Furthermore, a genuine family feeling prevails. This is most likely due to the fact that the occupants' parents were all closely involved in realising the project. Villa Octet is here because of the effort and determination of the parents, the many sponsors, and the township Haarlemmermeer. You don't have to be wealthy to start an initiative like this. And now, after lots of hard work, we're there: Villa Octet is a given!

In huge gratitude to the occupants: Lisa, Bjorn, Kelly, Fabian, Emma, Guus, Jamie and Puck.

Via del Corso

This stunning collection is inspired by the traditional master tailors in the heart of ancient Florence. In particular their passion for elegant, premium materials and bespoke items made to the highest standard of craftsmanship. Its basis comprises various warm hues of brown. The lettering brings to mind shop windows and façades of the original Italian master tailors. The mix of robust and soft fabrics lends an elegant touch.

OH MY CAKE!

We'd like to introduce you to Maria, our exceptional food stylist behind all our delicious recipes. Her cakes are out of this world which is why we're placing Maria in the spotlight. Maria has been with Rivièra Maison for many years now, not only working in the Arnhem Store, but also doing lots of creative workshops, such as making beautiful flower wreaths. But beside all of that, Maria is also our secret weapon behind all our food photography. Her amazing cakes are made with incredible passion and are photographed by us to inspire you!

APPLE CARAMEL CAKE

This cake will impress! A delicious apple cake with a hint of caramel.

Preheat the oven to 175 °C. Cream 150 gr butter with 125 gr sugar together and then beat 3 eggs one by one into the mixture. Add 200 gr flour and half a sachet of baking powder and mix well until it's reached a thick, firm consistency. Slice three apples into pieces and mix with 1 teaspoon of cinnamon. Spoon half the mixture into a greased 20 cm springform cake tin. On top of that spread half the apple pieces and a few chopped nuts and press into the mixture. Smooth the second half of the mixture on top and the second half of apple pieces on top of that.

Bake the cake in the preheated oven for an hour. Sprinkle small caramel cubes on the cake as decoration ... or simply as a delicious accompaniment to the cake!

MARIA'S VARIATION TIP:

“Substitute the caramel cubes with mascarpone cream for a tasty alternative!”

LAYERED DRIP CAKE

*A real eye-catcher to impress with at parties.
With as many layers as you like!*

Preheat the oven to 180 °C. Mix 240 gr flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and a dash of cinnamon in a bowl. Beat in 75 gr butter and 150 gr sugar with a mixer until it's reached a creamy consistency. Add 2 eggs one by one, adding 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract with the last egg. Alternately add a dash of the 125 ml buttermilk and a dollop of the flour mixture to the bowl, whilst mixing on the lowest setting. Reach a thick consistency once everything has been added.

Pour into a cake tin or oven dish and spread the mixture evenly with a spatula. Place in the oven for 60 minutes. Don't put the tin right at the top of the oven as the cake top might brown too much. Remove from the oven and leave to cool for quarter of an hour. You can repeat these steps (with extra ingredients) to as many layers you'd like to add to the cake. Once the cake has cooled, melt a bar of dark chocolate in a bain-marie and then pour over the cake top. Decorate with figs.

HEALTHY FRUIT CAKE

Who says cakes are bad for you? Opt for a healthier alternative with this recipe!

Preheat the oven to 160 °C. Mix together 210 gr almond flour, 140 gr coconut flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 large tablespoons cinnamon powder, 4 teaspoons vanilla powder from a vanilla pod and 175 gr raisins. Melt 350 gr cubed butter in a pan over a low heat. Remove the pan from the heat when the butter has nearly melted and leave to melt further on its own.

Add 7 eggs to a large bowl and beat with a mixer to a light consistency (5-10 mins). Add 200 gr coconut sugar to the egg and mix through. Add the melted butter to the egg mixture (it starts to smell wonderful at this point) and mix through. Now, spoonful by spoonful, add the dry flour mixture to the bowl and use the whisk to lightly blend. Spoon the dough mixture into a silicon turban-shaped mould and place in the oven for around 35-45 minutes.

UNIQUE & HANDMADE

In a predominantly machine manufacturing world, Riviera Maison's USP is to keep producing handmade products. In doing so we retain our unique style and personality that can be found back in each and every product. Place ten of the same candlesticks alongside one another and they will all differ slightly; that is the appeal of Riviera Maison. Perfectly Imperfect! Every product is made with the same enthusiasm but attaining uniformity is impossible ... which is, in fact, the draw. Resulting in a unique product, time and again.

The renowned rattan products that Riviera Maison creates its recognisable ambience with are the perfect example of Unique & Handmade. Rattan is a 100% natural material and twines up colossal tree trunks in the Indonesian Kalimantan jungle. A great deal of craftsmanship comes into play in the production of the furniture in our collections.

During the monsoon season, twines up to 5 or 6 metres long are harvested from the vines. The rattan lies in mud baths for a few weeks, creating the beautiful grey hue. After that the twines are selected by colour and thickness to be plaited into furniture and accessories. The rattan is finished off in small Javanese villages. It's quite an impressive sight seeing a village full of hanging rattan, ready for the new Riviera Maison season's collection.

Our superb wooden dining tables were formerly shed doors. The wood is treated to subsequently be incorporated into the tables by hand. 'It truly is 'living' material with its own particular character and beautiful properties. Craftsmen call it 'untouched', because the wood is untreated and nigh on in original condition. Now there are holes where once the hinges were. Splits in the antique doors become splits in the table-top, and a door that always stood open to the elements is different in colour to one that mostly stood dry and/or in the sun.

Pure nature, old and well-worn; that's what we prefer to work with. Moreover, sustainability is a crucial mainstay to Riviera Maison, and by working in this way we can make optimum use of recycled wood and so be more environmentally aware.

The glass accessories in our collections are handmade too, or rather, are mouth blown. Each glass blower has their individual 'signature'. Each glass accessory obtains its unique structure and perhaps a minor imperfection, such as a bubble in the glass or a difference in height. Everything is handmade, making each glass accessory unique.

Our earthenware production is perhaps the most exceptional. In Indonesia, or West Java to be precise, the earthenware accessories are made according to traditional methods. To start with, models are turned and cut by hand. Then it takes a week to dry them out of doors. The accessories are subsequently sanded down to make them as smooth as possible.

The firing process then begins. U-shaped kilns are built with bricks. The earthenware is stacked inside these primitive kilns. They have no door; the opening is bricked in by hand. The oven is stoked for around 16 hours at around 900 to 1000°C.

Then the bricked-in opening is broken open to remove the models. So, a new kiln is constructed for each new production run.

The hard clay models are sanded down again to make them smooth enough to paint and decorate. Sometimes a leather or rattan handle is added to a lantern or flower pot. All this work by hand means no two items look alike. Every earthenware item in the Riviera Maison collection features its own unique detailing: the charm of the Far East.
